Springtime in the Southwest

We have a special treat for the meeting in February. The survivors of charter member and former club president David Line have found his bound complete set of Mountain Ears, and have donated them. We will have them on display at the meeting. See page 2 for more details. Then we are thinking of donating them to the Mansfield Library for safekeeping, before any get lost or damaged. Or should volunteers scan them first? Help us decide what we should do with these precious documents.

This will be followed by a slide show about the Great Basin and deserts of the Southwest. Steve Schombel, your editor, has been making springtime trips down there since the late 1960's. He has some slides from early visits, and several from more recent ones.

Steve's first introduction to this dry part of the USA came in 1968, while a student at Colorado Mountain College. Some of his classmates told him about a "must see" area nearby, Colorado National Monument. In spite of its magnificent scenery this area is not as well known as the National Parks and Monuments in Utah and Arizona. During the 1990's he and Julia Warner took a trip when the mountains of the Southwest were really stormed in, and waterfalls were cascading down the cliffs of Zion. They also found some good ski touring and some very deep slush amid magnificent scenery. A few years later he and Charles Tree saw what locals called a "once in 20 year" wildflower bloom in Arizona. Additionally, there are some slides of lesser known areas, such as a State Park in Nevada and a backpack in the mid elevations of Arizona. In conclusion there are slides from last spring's trip to Capitol Reef and a backpack in one of our newest National Monuments, the Escalante-Grand Staircase.

The meeting will be on February 11th at 7:00 PM in the second floor meeting room of the Courthouse Annex, room #201. Use the Pine Street entrance. Rocky Mountaineers monthly meetings are free and open to all. Interested persons are welcome to stay and ask questions or to take a

David Pengelly Remembered

Last December the Glacier Mountaineering Society mailed out a notice that they posthumously added David Pengelly to their list of people who have successfully climbed the five technical peaks in Glacier National Park.

We are very happy to see a former club president receive this recognition, especially from such a highly regarded organization.

Trip Reports

January 3rd Rattlesnake Ski trail: The forecast was for bitterly cold weather on Sunday, so instead of going to the Lubrecht area Steve Schombel, Cathy Burleson, Michael Bowles, Michelle Jensen and Will Innes skied the newly groomed Rattlesnake trail Saturday, the last mild day. We had great snow and a fine time for several miles. Steve Niday also gave this trail high marks all the way to the Franklin Bridge, and it was featured in the Missoulian Outdoors Section, so check it out. - Steve January 10th Moonlight Ski/sledding was on the University golf course. We had a good turn out of adults and kids. Our son Joe and his wife Valerie and kids Allison, Jack, and our step grandson Luke, Our daughter Michelle, and son Jerimy, her fiance Bryan and our future step kids Patrick, Anna and Preston, Julie Warner, David Kahl, Fred Schwanemann, Steve and Cathy Schombel and son Mike Bowles had a great time skiing and sledding. Later we all went to our house for hot chocolate and goodies which my husband had put together for us. It was a fun evening. Lois Crepeau.

Sunday, January 18th Glacier Park: Fred and Eileen Schwanemann skied a portion of Going to the Sun Road from Lake McDonald Lodge to just past the Dancing Cascades and then back again. This was about six miles round trip. All the way to Dancing Cascades and part way back we did not see anyone else. The snow was 2 1/2 to 3 feet deep, frosty and fast, but very good ski conditions. Although the skies were mostly cloudy and there was some fog, it was a surprisingly good day to ski in Glacier. - Fred Sunday, January 25th Pack Creek Road: Fred Schwanemann, Julie Warner, David Kahl, John Wolverton, Bret Doucett, and Steve Schombel shuttled four cars and skied Pack Creek Road at Lolo Pass. The temperature was in the high teens, skies were overcast, it was snowing, and visibility was one mile or less.

We didn't need to wedge or snow plow down the grade. The trail was hard pack covered by one to four inches of new snow We were lucky with the weather. - Fred

Sunday, February 1st Family Day at Lolo Pass: Once the kids got to the sledding hill they did not want to leave, and spent happy hours in the snow. Fred Schwanemann took off skiing and did about 11 miles total. Steve Schombel and David Kahl skied the short loop. Julie Warner, Cathy Burleson and John Wolverton spent a fine afternoon playing with the youngsters, Gharrett and Hannah Warner and Michael Bowles. Another great day for all. - Steve

Early Issues of the Mountain Ear

The complete set of Mountain Ears is a wonderful gift to the club. There are many questions about its early days, the typical who, what, why and when. It was believed that a set existed in the Mansfield Library, but volunteers were unable to find the first several years of issues. It appears that the late David Line was the only original member who saved all of his issues up into the 1990's.

The first issue, volume I number 1 is dated October, 1961. But there is more. There is a set of original bylaws, followed by an amended set that David Line noted was apparently adopted in 1963. There was an executive board, a list of charter members, duplicate lists of the first several years of officers, and an index followed by the newsletters themselves.

The man who is credited with the idea behind the Rocky Mountaineers is Thad Lowery. The first group of officers, 1960-61, were: president Gardner Miller, vice president Tom Collins and secretary-treasurer Luann Layman. Mary Millers is credited with the name of the publication, "Mountain Ear", and Lou Jordan created the clever logo, which remains unchanged from volume one number one. The mission statement in our masthead has only been slightly modified, to reflect the fact that we are no longer a joint venture club. The phrase "with primary emphasis on rock and snow-ice climbing" was also dropped.

The activities of this early group were impressive, with back country skiing in the bowls and ridges above nearby ski areas and in the Bitterroots. In summer they worked on clearing trails to favorite areas, and did some routes that are still considered very difficult. But they also had some easier days. Interesting examples are route finding to McCloud Peak when one could drive way up the Rattlesnake, and a hike to Murphy Peak when the road was open to the top of Point Six. If only time would allow a thorough reading.
